Rules of Participation

Public Session – Analysis of the Environmental Impact Statement

Marine Terminal Project on the North Shore of the Saguenay

The rules of participation in the public session are designed to facilitate the participation of all interested persons and ensure respect for participants, the proponent, its consultants and the members of the technical committee making up the panel. They are also designed to maintain a climate conducive to discussion in order to gather questions and comments from the public concerning the proponent's Environmental Impact Statement.

All participants in the consultation process agree to abide by the following rules:

- The facilitator will inform participants and resource persons when it is their turn to speak.
- The microphone of the facilitator is always open. When the facilitator speaks, the other microphones are automatically closed.
- The questions and comments must relate to the project under study and the Environmental Impact Statement or the environmental assessment process. This consultation takes place during the period where the technical committee members analyze the Environmental Impact Statement of the proponent. It is thus possible that the committee may not be able to answer certain questions, since his analysis is not completed.
- Questions must be directed to the facilitator, who will refer them to the appropriate resource person. Individuals are invited to mention their name and their group affiliation if applicable.
- A maximum of 2 questions or comments can be provided at a time. A maximum of 5 minutes will be allowed per question in order to give as many individuals as possible an opportunity to speak. Sub-questions associated with a main question will be considered a second question. It is possible for an individual to ask more questions later in the evening by coming back at the microphone.
- The discussions must ensure respect for all individuals. Participants are asked to present their questions in a calm and moderate tone. Personal attacks and abusive or threatening language will not be tolerated.
- Individuals must avoid applauding or being noisy during the questions and answers to allow the assembly to hear what is being said.

The facilitator reserves the right to interrupt the participant or end the session if the rules of participation are not followed.
